VAUGHAN, ON ... September 2006 – FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE . . .

THE EVOLUTION OF MIELE

ON AUGUST 25, 2004 Henrik Breulmann, Interior Design Engineer sketched the future home of Miele Canada. Concepts of a floor plan materialized. Ideas, input and research from employees and experts were considered.

By September the Heitmann Architecture Firm from Germany had visualized Miele Canada. This design template has and will be used on Miele buildings and structures throughout the world.

The Walter Fedy Partnership based in Kitchener, Ontario took the original concepts and “Canadianized” them. The 13,000 square foot of interior and exterior glassing provides the advantage of natural lighting throughout the building giving an open and free feeling. Miele Canada is a unique headquarters facility that encompasses neutral, timeless shades and is accented by the distinctive red Miele logo. Its two story construction houses 33,000 square foot of outstanding office, call centre, showroom, training and demonstration space.

“Miele Canada takes pride in its countless innovations. Innovations others can only dream of,” says Jan Heck, President Miele (Canada) Limited. Now in Miele’s new Showroom the reality of these groundbreaking ideas can be viewed by the public. The Showroom itself will delight the senses.

Anything else is a compromise

Miele Canada is showcasing state-of-the-art appliances in elegant lifestyle environments – all in perfect harmony. Situated on four acres of land, Miele anticipates and is prepared for future growth. As stated by Jan Heck, "...this building is more than an office – it will serve as the flagship Miele Design Centre. A place where customers can learn and experience products that will enhance their daily lives, a meeting place and a resource centre".

Miele History in brief...

Already a household name internationally, Miele exploded into Canada in 1988 with its sleek design, superior engineering and unparalleled service.

Founded in 1899 on a promise of "Immer Besser," a German phrase meaning "Forever Better," Miele has distinguished itself in the appliance market by continuing to offer a record number of major innovations as well as a deep belief in nurturing their network of national retail partners.

Miele celebrated its centenary July 1, 1999.
